Thanks to sponsors of the meeting
The meeting was made possible through the generous unrestricted support from the pharmaceutical companies.
He works currently in the Department of Gastroenterology-Pancreatology in Beaujon’s Hospital, Clichy, France. He was also responsible for the Pole of Liver, Digestive and Pancreatic Diseases located in Beaujon, Bichat and Louis-Mourier Hospitals. He is Professor of Gastroenterology at University Paris 7, Denis-Diderot, and is Dean of Paris Diderot Medicine Faculty since July 2015.

His main areas of interest are digestive neuroendocrine tumours and pancreatic diseases (mainly pancreatic cancer, intraductal papillary mucinous neoplasms, acute and chronic pancreatitis). He has published 380 papers in international Journals and serves as a reviewer for leading journals in gastroenterology. He is past President of the French Society of Gastroenterology, and a member of numerous societies in the field of Gastroenterology, Pancreatology and Digestive Oncology. While he served as President of the European Neuroendocrine Tumor Society (ENETS) between 2010 and 2012, then Vice-Chairman, he is currently a member of ENETS Advisory Board.
